

Riverside Quarterly Report

Chapter One

The small library stood on the bank of a slow river, and every morning the librarian unlocked the reading room before the first volunteer arrived.

Riverside Quarterly Report

Chapter Two

Most readers came for the reading room. It was quiet, it was warm, and the windows looked out on the river bank.

Riverside Quarterly Report

Chapter Three

Money was a constant worry. Every Friday the librarian walked to the bank in the town square to deposit the fines.